REPLIES TO DR. LEVY

Mr. Donati, of the Fair Oaks Distillery Company, of Henrico county, takes issue with Dr. E. C. Levy, city health officer, who, Mr. Donati declares, has publicly stated that the swill from his distillery is impure and not fit to be fed to cowa. Mr. Donasti stated that he used only rys, barley and corn in his distillery, and that during the process of cooking the stuff was heated to 26 degrees, at which heat all germs were destroyed. It is washed twice with 56a gallons of hot water, and said Mr. Donati, is as good as any feed there is. He said that he could take an old steer and make of it a fine looking salinal after twenty-five or thirty days of feeding on his swill.

Mr. Donati said further that he had written to Washington for a statement regarding the purity and cleanliness of the swill turned out at his distillery, and that, after having received it, he would bring it before the City Council.

Mr. Donati admitted, however, that there might be some things of which he did not know concerning the swill.
